Background note:

Printing.com offers a broad product range to consumers and small and medium sized companies. Unlike its competitors, Printing.com Franchises do not depend on inhouse printing equipment. The Company's printing and ancillary equipment is based at the centralised Production Hub with the head office in Manchester. All work is produced in full four colour rather than two colour. The printing sector has traditionally been served by smaller printing companies or other On Demand Printers and is estimated to be worth some £1-£2 billion. Printing.com has two routes to market: Franchise Stores and Bolt-on Franchises.
